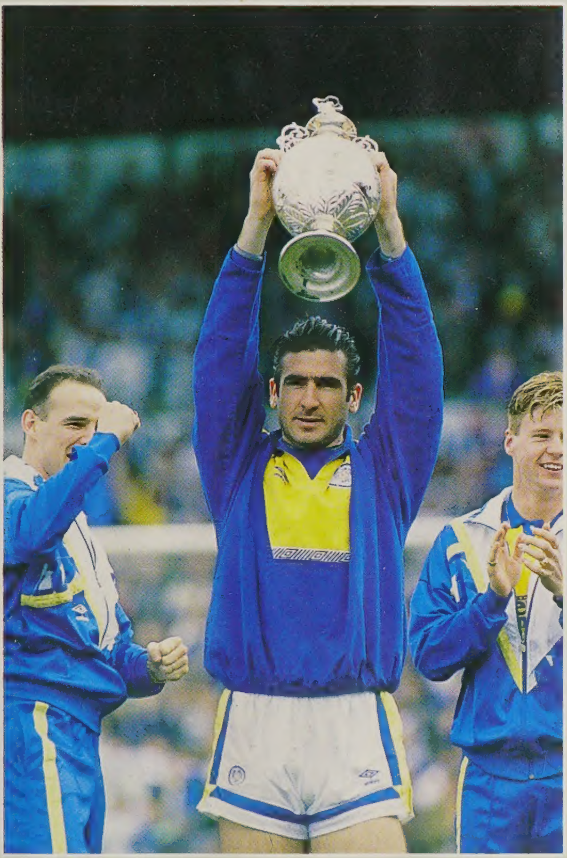
THE BREEDON BOOK OF

FOOTBALL LEAGUE RECORDS



INCLUDES FA CUP & LEAGUE CUP RESULTS

GORDON SMAILES

In 1992, the Football League as we know it ceased to exist with the formation of the Premier League under the Football Association. Although compromises had been reached from the original plan to have a small elite top league, the fact remained that the old First Division, for so long the very pinnacle of English football, had given way to a new organization.

This second edition of Gordon Smailes' massive reference work gives the dates and results of every single Football League game to have been played from the competition's first season in 1888-9 right up to the end of an era in 1991-2. It is also the only book to contain that information plus FA Cup and League Cup results all between the same covers.

Profusely illustrated with photographs of the teams and the players who have made football history, this is an important addition to the published works on football history.

Foreword

IT WAS Lloyd George who said early this century: "You cannot feed the hungry on statistics", but Breedon Books in general, and Gordon Smailes in particular, continue to do their best to provide the committed football follower with works of reference which are more than mere argument settlers.

With the game changing rapidly and the almost inevitable advent of a new Premier League, it is an unenviable task to keep pace with the myriad of factual information which association football throws up, and which the ardent supporter devours, as one season seems to run into the next.

Records have been set, and some of them protected, ever since the Football League stirred into life in September 1888. There were just five matches on the opening day (there was certainly no Sports Report to give the results at five o'clock) and it would be nearly forty years later before such relevant facts as attendance figures would be properly recorded.

However, the achievement of Preston North End in winning the League Championship that first season without losing a single game has never been matched, although Arsenal came as near to it in the 1990-91 season as had any other Championship side over the century.

Although it is generally agreed that the modern game is harder, faster and more demanding than in years gone by, records continue to fall and new ones are set. It is frequently the more recent achievements that play tricks with the memory.

But for glancing through this volume I would have struggled to nominate John Aldridge as the player to have scored in the most consecutive games, and to pinpoint the year in which Brian Clough's Nottingham Forest set the League record of 42 unbeaten matches. The latter achievement is one to which Clough proudly referred in a BBC interview prior to the 1991 FA Cup Final.

Thinking of the FA Cup, the inclusion here of all the results from the two major knockout competitions gives the book added weight and authenticity. Across the spectrum of the three leading domestic outlets — League, League Cup and FA Cup — Gordon Smailes has not only pulled together the full story of some 120 years of first-class football in England, but has also managed to correct the irritating, yet inevitable, inaccuracies which at times have appeared elsewhere.

In short, it is another in the series of labours of love for which Breedon, with their Complete Record series featuring individual clubs, seem able to come up with authors who are either fanatics, insomniacs, or just plain football daft.

Without them, for sure, those of us who depend on reliable works of reference would be totally lost. I only hope that their job satisfaction is not tempered by the thought that in just one year's time, the volume can be out of date!

Fortunately, the constant updating of the series has meant more editions, and more space to be found on the now overcrowded bookshelf of the soccer collector. Allocating space for this one, however, will be both a necessity and a pleasure.

Introduction

THERE have been many statistical books covering the story of the Football League since its foundation in 1888. The League's official history The Story of the Football League, published in 1938, gave the dates and results of all games played up to the end of the 1937-8 season; and Ian Laschke's Rothmans Book of Football League Records 1888-89 to 1978-79 extended that work when it was published and added to it the Football League tables.

This second edition of The Breedon Book of Football League Records, a work first published in 1991 and now corrected and updated, not only extends the subject still further, now taking in the 13 seasons since the Laschke book, it also attempts to correct a few earlier errors which inevitably have crept into books of this sort.

For instance, the result of the Notts County-Derby County game in the League's first season had always been given as 5-2 in Derby's favour and with a date of 17 November 1888; it is now known that the score was 5-3 to the Rams and that the game was played on 16 March 1889; similarly, the Woolwich Arsenal-Loughborough Town game on 4 January 1896 ended 5-0 to the Gunners, not 6-0 as always previously published. For that piece of information we are indebted to Arsenal historian, Fred Ollier.

All this is not to smugly suggest that this book has righted all previous wrongs and is 100 per cent accurate, simply to illustrate that there are so many areas where the researcher has to tread carefully and not blindly accept what has been accepted before. To attempt this, Gordon Smailes has gone back to primary sources of research and both he and the publishers believe this book to be more accurate than anything that has gone before. Anyone with additional information is cordially invited to contact the author through Breedon Books.

This book also includes the results of all FA Cup ties (from the competition proper) and all Football League Cup games in a bid to present as broad a picture of English first-class football as possible. And it is hoped that the inclusion of a records section and the many illustrations will also enhance this work.

The author and publishers are most grateful to John Motson for his kind foreword and to football statisticians and historians everywhere who have shown enthusiasm for this project.

Note: In the results tables for each Football League division, 'A' refers to August, 'a' to April; 'm' refers to May, 'M' to March; and 'j' refers to June and 'J' to January. All the other capital letters are the initial letters of the month concerned (ie 'F' refers to February). The notes at the head of each season tell how the make-up of the League was achieved for that campaign. Thus 'Doncaster Rovers failed to gain re-election' at the head of 1905-06 means that they were voted out at the 1905 annual meeting.

William McGregor, the Birmingham draper who suggested the idea of a Football League.

The Football League

IN 1888, organized football was still an infant, albeit a lusty one, with professionalism having been legalized only three years earlier and the FA Cup only 16 years old. And apart from that competition, then known as the 'English Cup', and the mushrooming local cup competitions, football clubs still had to rely on prestigious friendly games to bring in the crowds. It was a state of affairs which was beginning to pose problems for the leading sides.

Once the thrill of truly competitive cup football had been experienced, friendly matches between even the top teams of the day, had no cutting edge, no real excitement. Further down the scale, the game was often being conducted in a haphazard manner. It was not uncommon for people to arrive and find that the opposition had not turned up, or matches kicked-off so late that spectators had drifted home long before the end.

At the top end of the scale, those clubs which had embraced professionalism now needed money to pay their players. These were the days long before outside commercial activity in football and the clubs could see only one way to finance the signing of better players. The money had to come through the gate, handed over by the paying spectator. It was vital for clubs to find a regular source of income.

One such club was Aston Villa and one of their committee members, William McGregor, a draper with premises near Aston Park, fearing that his club might lose its place as one of the leading sides in the country, suggested a league competition similar to that used in American baseball, although much nearer to home the County Cricket Championship could have provided an example.

His argument was strong: a league would guarantee a definite list of games — what McGregor called a 'fixity of fixtures'. And it would provide additional competitive football.

On 2 March 1888, he sent out his now famous letter to Blackburn Rovers, Bolton Wanderers, Preston North End, West Bromwich Albion and to the secretary of his own club, Aston Villa, asking them if they would be interested in forming a football league.

An initial meeting was held on the eve of that year's FA Cup Final, on Friday, 23 March at Anderton's Hotel in Fleet Street, London. Officially in attendance were representatives of Aston Villa, Blackburn Rovers, Burnley, Stoke (who weren't 'City' until 1925), Notts County, West Bromwich Albion and Wolverhampton Wanderers. Preston, who were playing in the Cup Final, did not attend. Nor did Bolton, although as their secretary, John Bentley, had been the only one to respond to McGregor's request for lists of prospective founder-members, presumably McGregor was not too concerned at the Trotters' absence. Derby County's secretary, John Richardson, attended but 'only to observe'.

A further meeting was held on 17 April at Manchester's Royal Hotel. According to the minutes, 11 clubs were represented — all the founder-members except Accrington, although they may have been there — and a name for the competition was settled. McGregor suggested the 'Football Association Union', but this was rejected because of possible confusion with the Rugby Football Union. McGregor's own objection to the name 'Football League' (he thought it might be confused with politically unpopular organizations, the Irish Home Rule League and the Land League) was overruled.

So the Football League began with 12 clubs. They comprised six from Lancashire: Accrington, Blackburn Rovers, Bolton Wanderers, Burnley, Everton and Preston North End; and six from the Midlands: Aston Villa, Derby County, Notts County, Stoke, West Bromwich Albion and Wolverhampton Wanderers. Remarkably, of those dozen founder-members over a century ago, only Accrington (no relation to the later Accrington Stanley) have gone to the wall. Nottingham Forest, The Wednesday (they did not adopt 'Sheffield' until 1929) and a Lancashire side called Halliwell were not accepted by the new organization.

William McGregor was elected chairman, Harry Lockett of Stoke was the first secretary, and Major William Sudell of Preston North End was the first treasurer. The annual subscription for each club was two guineas (£2.10) and two points were to be awarded for a win and one for a draw. Teams finishing on the same number of points would have to submit to the goal-average, whereby the number scored was divided by the number conceded. It is ironic that this prevailed until 1976 — the dawn of the pocket calculator age — when it was replaced by the much simpler goal-difference used today. Two points for a win continued until 1981, when it was replaced by three points for victory, a move which arguably made the game more entertaining and deterred visiting teams from settling for a draw and only one point.

The first matches in the Football League — five at the onset — were staged on Saturday, 8 September 1888.

Until the League began to keep such records in 1925, football attendance figures were notoriously inaccurate and it apparently relied upon a local journalist casting an eye around a not-always familiar stadium. Indeed, if the exact figure was known, the League ordered that it should not be published. Nevertheless, one has to record that apparently some 26,000 people watched the five opening games, an average of just over 5,000 per match.

The highest 'gate' of the day was the 10,000 who saw Everton beat Accrington 2-1; the lowest, suprisingly, was the local derby game between Wolves and Aston Villa, where 2,500 turned up at Dudley Road.

There were few shocks, although Derby County managed to beat Bolton Wanderers 6-3 at Pikes Lane after trailing 3-0 after only 15 minutes. And the first League game on Merseyside started an hour after the scheduled kick-off when Accrington were late arriving at Anfield — where Everton then played.

The identity of the first Football League goalscorer is not known, although it was probably either Preston's Jack Gordon or his amateur teammate Fred Dewhurst, depending on which account one reads.

A week later Notts County and Blackburn Rovers made their League debuts. County attracted only 3,000 to Anfield. Blackburn drew 5-5 with Accrington before a 5,000 crowd at Ewood Park.

Until 1891, the referee stood on the touch-line and arbitrated only when the umpires, one from each club, could not agree. Players were not numbered until 1939 and there were no programmes.

The first player to be cautioned in a Football League game was Alec Dick, an Everton full-back who, on 13 October 1888, apparently hit a Notts County player and used foul language. The first offence was not proven and Dick was simply ordered to apologize for using ungentlemanly language.

At the end of the first season, Preston North End were declared League Champions. They were unbeaten in their 22 games and also won the FA Cup without conceding a goal. The four bottom clubs — Stoke, Burnley, Derby and Notts County — were all re-elected. A total of 586 goals were scored at an average of 4.43 per game and only two matches ended scoreless in that first season.

Preston retained the title the following season, at the end of which the Football League lost its first club when Stoke finished bottom and were replaced by Sunderland. It was a particular blow for the League secretary Harry Lockett of Stoke FC. Thus, the position of secretary was now held by a truly impartial individual, a situation that has remained so ever since.

In that second season, the Football League had begun to raise more and more funds by fining clubs for breaches of the regulations, mostly for ineligible players

That season also saw the League Committee rule that since Aston Villa and Bolton Wanderers, who had both finished on 19 points, were separated by only the tiniest fraction of a goal (0.84314 and 0.84375 respectively) they should be declared as having finished equal eighth, which thus avoided the embarrassment of McGregor's Villa having to apply for re-election.

In 1890-91, a new name appeared on the Football League trophy when Everton took top place. During this season, newcomers Sunderland became the first club to have two points deducted when they fielded goalkeeper Teddy Doig before his qualifying period was ended.

The League also imposed a minimum admission charge of 6d (less than 3p) to games, although they let in ladies free.

In December 1891, concerned at the 'poaching' of players, the Football League and the newly-formed Football Alliance agreed a maximum signing-on fee of £10. It remained so for the next seven decades. A bid to impose a maximum wage in 1891 failed for the time being.

In April 1891 the first inter-League game took place between the Football League and the Football Alliance at Olive Grove, Sheffield. Other fixtures were added and the games were used primarily as fund-raisers for the participating competitions.

At the end of the League's third season Stoke, who had played a season in the Football Alliance, were voted back in with Lancashire club, Darwen. This time there was no team dropping out, the League being extended to 14 clubs.

In their second season of membership, Sunderland took the title and at the 1892 annual meeting it was decided to form a Second Division (although it initially referred to as the 'Second League') by incorporating many of the clubs from the Football Alliance. West Brom, incidentaly, having just won the FA Cup, were exempted from having to apply for re-election even though they had finished in the bottom four.

Nottingham Forest, Newton Heath (later Manchester United) and The Wednesday went straight into what was now effectively the First Division; Darwen, who had just finished bottom, joined the Second Division.

Newcastle East End, Middlesbrough and Middlesbrough Ironopolis (who would amalgamate if accepted) applied for the First Division and, having been rejected, each turned down a Second Division place. Liverpool, a newly-formed club, were also turned down and spent their first season in the Lancashire League, which they won.

The Football League was now expanding into new areas and William McGregor resigned, to be replaced by the Bolton-based referee and journalist John Bentley who was to have such an enormous impact on the League's affairs.

Now a two-division affair, the Football League had to address the problem of promotion and relegation. In April 1892, with Sunderland again the League Champions, six clubs fought out a 19th-century version of today's play-offs, which were resurrected in 1987. Three from the top of Division Two and three from the bottom of Division One played what were called 'test matches,' whilst the bottom four clubs in Division Two had to submit to re-election.

The outcome was that Accrington and Notts County were relegated and Darwen and Sheffield United promoted. Bootle, who had finished outside the re-election zone, resigned anyway and the Second Division was enlarged to 15 clubs with the election of Newcastle United, Rotherham County and Middlesbrough.

The test match idea was eventually dropped in favour of automatic promotion/relegation after the infamous 'game without a shot at goal', when Stoke and Burnley, each needing a point, blatently contrived a goalless draw at the end of the 1897-8 season.

In 1898-9, the first season of automatic ups and downs, there was a quite remarkable situation when the game between Aston Villa (the eventual Champions) and The Wednesday (who were to finish bottom) on 26 November was abandoned because of bad light with Villa leading 3-1 and just over ten minutes to play. The remaining minutes were played out on 13 March the following year, when Villa added another goal.

New names were now being engraved on the Football League Championship trophy. Aston Villa were the giants up to the turn of the century with five successes, whilst Liverpool and Sheffield United also won the title in that time. Villa were the true football giants of that decade and in 1896-7 they became the second team (and the last for over 60 years) to win the League and FA Cup double. They did it with the names of Athersmith, Devey, Spencer, Reynolds and the Cowans making the headlines, for soccer was now receiving much greater newspaper coverage.

Still there were many changing names in the League's membership and in 1893, Woolwich Arsenal became the first Football League club in London. Meanwhile, the League was being steadily increased in numbers and by 1900 the First and Second Divisions each stood at 18 clubs.

In the early years of this century, Liverpool twice won the title and were relegated in between, and The Wednesday were League Champions in consecutive years.

Liverpool's first title came in 1900-01, despite few changes in playing personnel from the side which had finished in tenth place the previous season. Despite winning their first three games, Liverpool had fallen to eighth by the middle of January and an early exit from the FA Cup meant that the Anfielders had lost three consecutive games. But from 9 February until the end of the season on 29 April, they were unbeaten, conceding only four goals in their last 12 matches. The Merseysiders were thus Champions only eight seasons after joining the Football League.

The Reds were relegated at the end of the 1903-04 season, but in 1905-06 they became the first club to win the First and Second Divisions in consecutive seasons. And they took their second League Championship with the addition of only two players — goalkeeper Sam Hardy and half-back James Bradley — to the side which had stormed to the Second Division title.

Yet a strange twist perhaps helped Liverpool to this second title. On the opening day of the season, centre-forward Jack Parkinson broke his wrist at Woolwich Arsenal's Plumstead ground. Joe Hewitt took over and ended the season as the Reds' leading scorer with 23 goals from only 37 games. Early in the season, Liverpool had languished in the bottom two before an unbeaten run of 16 games swept them to the top.

On 2 September 1899, The Wednesday opened their new ground at Owlerton with a Second Division game against Chesterfield. The ground became known as Hillsborough and Wednesday celebrated the move by winning the Second Division title that season.

After a period of consolidation it was Wednesday's turn to write their name on the Football League trophy. They topped the First Division in 1902-03 and retained the title the following season. Their first success was a close-run affair. When the Owls had completed their programme, Sunderland, the other contenders, still had a game to play. In the event the Wearsiders suffered an unexpected setback at Newcastle.

On the day their fate was decided, Wednesday were helping to promote professional football in Devon, playing Notts County at Home Park where a 3-0 win earned them the Plymouth Bowl. They retained the League Championship in more comfortable fashion, finishing three points ahead of Manchester City in a season when there was talk of a League and Cup double at Owlerton. They lost to Manchester City in the FA Cup semi-final at Goodison Park. And then City beat Bolton in the Final, having, of course, themselves missed out on the double by losing the title to Wednesday.

Manchester United, inspired by the great Billy Meredith, won the First Division title for the first time in 1907-08, the season that United were floated as a public company. Meredith had joined them in May 1906, in the wake of a bribes and illegal payments scandal surrounding his previous club, Manchester City, which had seen him and others receive lengthy suspensions.

Meredith made his United debut after the ban had been lifted on 1 January 1907 and the following season, along with former City colleagues Burgess, Bannister and Sandy Turnbull, all of whom had also been suspended, he helped United to the title.

They were by far the First Division's outstanding team, finishing nine points clear of runners-up Aston Villa, who were themselves only 13 points clear of the bottom club, Birmingham. Between them Meredith, Sandy Turnbull and the England winger George Wall scored over 50 of United's goals. Vittorio Pozzo, the man who was to guide Italy to two World Cup triumphs in the 1930s, was then a poor student living in England. He watched United during their Championship season and used some of their techniques in his successful Italian teams.

But the great name in Edwardian soccer was that of Newcastle United, who enjoyed three Championship successes in five seasons as well as appearing in five FA Cup Finals before World War One.

In 1905 they won the title for the first time and almost did the double, losing to Aston Villa in the FA Cup Final. The following season they were again beaten in the Cup Final but lifted another First Division title in 1907. Twelve months later the Magpies lost yet another Cup Final but in 1909 they achieved another Championship triumph, despite an amazing 9-1 defeat by arch-rivals Sunderland at St James' Park. The Cup eventually went to Gallowgate in 1910 when Newcastle beat Barnsley in a replayed Final at Goodison Park. A year later, by now the most consistent team of the decade, they reached the Cup Final once more, this time losing to Barnsley.

There were some great names in the famous black and white stripes — long-serving goalkeeper Jimmy Lawrence, full-backs Carr, McCombie and McCracken, half-backs Veitch, McWilliam and Gardner, and a forward line of Rutherford, Shepherd, Appleyard and Howie. In the history of the game only a handful of clubs can match the dominance which Newcastle United enjoyed in their Edwardian heyday.

Before the Football League closed down during World War One, Manchester United, Aston Villa, Sunderland and Everton had added to their earlier wins and Blackburn Rovers were First Division champions for the first time in 1911-12.

For so long, Blackburn supporters had criticized their club for being too frugal with money. Now the Rovers' board spent on strengthening the team and were rewarded with the League Championship. The major signing was that of Jock Simpson, a right winger who joined Blackburn from Falkirk. This former driver of a horse-drawn ominibus cost Rovers a record £1,800 and he repaid them with some fine performances in the Championship season.

Two seasons later, Blackburn were Champions again. They began the season with five straight wins and that set the pattern for the rest of the campaign. Simpson, Danny Shea (a £2,000 signing from West Ham), Eddie Latheron (a £25 'snip' from non-League football) and Joe Hodkinson (from Second Division Glossop) blended well together. Behind them, one of the League's finest full-back partnerships of long-serving England player Bob Crompton and Arthur Cowell was as reliable as ever.

One outrageous piece of business had been conducted in 1919 when Arsenal, sixth in Division Two in the last pre-war season and heavily in debt after moving to their new stadium at Highbury, were engineered into the First Division by their owner, Sir Henry Norris MP. Each division was to be extended by two clubs but there was never any justification for Arsenal to be moved up to Division One, where they have remained ever since.

West Brom and Burnley added their names in the first two seasons of post-war football before Liverpool won the title twice in succession. And in 1920-21, the Third Division was formed, by incorporating clubs from the Southern League, although Cardiff City went straight into Division Two and Grimsby Town made up the numbers in the new Third Division with the prospect of some long journeys.

Twelve months later the new section became the Third Division South with the creation of the Third Division North, to which Grimsby where thankfully switched. Now the Football League had four divisions and numbered 88 clubs in all, although the Third Division sides were 'associate members' only.

In 1923-4, Huddersfield Town won the first of three successive Football League Championship titles. The man who started them on that historic road was a former Northampton Town player called Herbert Chapman. Before Town's third title win, Chapman had moved to Highbury, where he set the Gunners on the road to a similar feat, although he was to die before it was completed.

Huddersfield's first success was not resolved until the very last day of the season, when their 3-0 win over Nottingham Forest, coupled with Cardiff City's 0-0 draw at St Andrew's, was sufficient to give the Yorkshire club the title by 0.024 of a goal. An eight-match run, during which they dropped only four points, clinched the title 12 months later. And the third Championship was achieved after Town again opened the season with ten unbeaten games and finally took the title with a 3-0 win over their 'bogey' team. Bolton Wanderers. There was something of an anticlimax after that when Town lost their last two games.

The Huddersfield team which achieved this treble was skippered by the former Aston Villa forward, Clem Stephenson, who scored 20 goals in 105 appearances in that time. Other stalwarts were Tommy Wilson, Billy Watson, Billy Smith, Sam Wadsworth, George Brown (leading overall scorer with 63 goals), David Steele, Ray Goodall, George Cook, Ted Taylor, Charlie Wilson and Alex Jackson, one of the most gifted forwards of the inter-war period, who joined Huddersfield for a club record fee of £5,000 from Aberdeen.

After Huddersfield's feat, the League trophy ended the 1920s in familiar hands with Newcastle, Everton and Sheffield Wednesday all regaining it. Arsenal began the 1930s with their first Championship and after Everton had interrupted their run in 1931-2, the Gunners were Champions for three seasons on the trot.

Everton's title had been won with the epic contribution of centre-forward Dixie Dean, who scored 45 League goals that season. Of course, that was relatively small beer to Dean, who had netted a record 60 goals in the 1927-8 season and would end his career with 349 League goals in only 399 matches. He also scored a record 37 hat-tricks during his career.

But it was Arsenal who were perhaps the first truly 'national' club, stamping their name indelibly on English football during the 1930s.

Besides the innovative Herbert Chapman — amongst many other things he is credited with evolving the 'stopper' centre-half system to counter the 1925 change in the offside law — there were great players like Alex James and Cliff Bastin, Eddie Hapgood and George Male, Jack Crayston and Wilf Copping, Jack Lambert and then Ted Drake, all of whom became household names. Seven Arsenal players turned out in one England team.

When the Gunners won the title for the first time in 1930-31 they were the first southern club to lift the Championship. The following season they finished two points behind top club Everton and lost a controversial FA Cup Final to Everton. Then came another Championship, in a season also marked by a sensational FA Cup defeat at the hands of Third Division Walsall, and two more titles quickly followed.

In January 1934, Hebert Chapman died after a short illness. It is impossible to overestimate his contribution to the game and the period 1929-34 will always be known as the 'Chapman Era'. George Allison, one of the club's directors and a well-known journalist, took over as manager of Arsenal and saw the Gunners through to their historic treble.

During the 1920s and '30s, transfer fees had spiralled. In 1928, Arsenal paid a record £10,000 for centre-forward David Jack from Bolton. His fee was 50 per cent higher than the previous record, paid by Aston Villa for Partick Thistle's Jimmy Gibson. And it had all started with the £1,000 which Middlesbrough had paid Sunderland for centre-forward Alf Common in 1905, when 'Boro were criticized for 'buying' their way out of trouble, as though it was not a gentlemanly thing to do. It was an upward trend that would continue until fees approached the £2 million mark in the 1980s.

Although Arsenal remained the country's leading club up to World War Two, they won the title only once more, in 1937-8, with Sunderland, Manchester City (for the first time) and Everton all taking their turn before the competition was again suspended. In the Everton side which won the last post-war League Championship, a 19-year-old centre-forward called Tommy Lawton scored 34 goals. Sadly, like so many of his generation, Lawton was about to lose six years of his career to the war.

Although Liverpool were the first post-war Champions — this was the team of Billy Liddell, Jack Balmer, Albert Stubbins, Phil Taylor, Bob Paisley and company — Arsenal again lifted the title in 1947-8. Their heroes were now Joe Mercer (a member of Everton's pre-war Championship side), George Swindin, Wally Barnes, Laurie Scott, the Compton brothers, Jimmy Logie, Reg Lewis and the veteran centre-forward Ronnie Rooke.

Then a vibrant Portsmouth team, led by Jimmy Dickinson and containing exciting players like Jack Froggatt and Phil Harris, topped the First Division in successive seasons before the 1950s began with Arthur Rowe's newly-promoted Tottenham side, with its delightful 'push and run' style, going straight to the top of the tree.

Rowe's Tottenham side was one of the most purely 'footballing' teams the game has ever seen. They began the 1949-50 season with a long unbeaten run, including two spells of seven consecutive victories. That was enough to give them the Second Division title and they went straight on to head Division One in 1950-51. Despite losing the first game of that season, 4-1 at home to Blackpool, they enjoyed an eight-match winning sequence in October and November and during that time beat Portsmouth (Champions for the previous two seasons) 5-1, Newcastle United 7-0 and Stoke City 6-1. There is always a hiccup, however, and bottom club Huddersfield were the only team to take all the points off Spurs that season — and also knocked them out of the FA Cup for good measure.

That great Spurs team included the skilful wing-halves Bill Nicholson and Ronnie Burgess, and delightful forward play from Eddie Baily, Len Duquemin, Les Bennett and Les Medley. Ted Ditchburn kept goal behind full-backs Alf Ramsey and Arthur Wilis.

Spurs' reign was brief, however, as Matt Busby's Manchester United (a club Busby had inherited when they had no ground in the aftermath of the war) and then Arsenal again took the title.

Those early post-war days had been a boom time for soccer attendances. After the deprivations of war, people wanted entertainment and there were queues everywhere — at cinemas and into speedway, cricket and boxing tournaments. Football, as the true national sport, benefited most and this was a golden age of great stars and huge crowds.

Manager Stan Cullis and England skipper Billy Wright steered Wolves to the Championship in 1953-4 and nobody much begrudged Chelsea, for so long a music-hall joke, their lone success the following season before Manchester United took up the reins again.

This was the United team of Tommy Taylor and Duncan Edwards, Roger Byrne and Eddie Colman. The United team that was to be decimated and then immortalized by the Munich air disaster. In the season that United's dreams came crashing down at the end of an icy German runway, Wolves took the title and retained it the following year.

In 1958 the League format was altered significantly. The top halves of the Third Divisions North and South formed a new Third Division. The rest went into a national Fourth Division. Re-election still had to be avoided until 1987 when the bottom club had no choice but was simply relegated to what is now the GM Vauxhall Conference. It was a shock for Burnley, founder-members of the Football League, when, in the first year of play-offs and relegation from Division Four, they came within one game of going out of the League altogether.

In 1959-60, however, Burnley lifted the Championship before another great Tottenham side blossomed into full fruit. Danny Blanchflower led Bill Nicholson's side to the first modern League and FA Cup double in 1960-61 before Ipswich Town took the title in 1961-2. The names of that Spurs team rolled off the tongue like honey, names like Brown, Baker and Henry, Blanchflower, Norman and Mackay, Jones, Medwin, White, Smith, Greaves, Allen and Dyson.

This was an important era for the Football League. In 1961, led by its chairman, Jimmy Hill, the Professional Footballers' Association successfully campaigned for the abolition of the maximum wage. Now the best players could earn more by moving on and the game was to see the end of such long-serving one-club stars as Tom Finney and Nat Lofthouse. The effect was enormous. The removal of the maximum wage, whilst a move of obvious natural justice, saw the powerful big-city clubs grow more powerful still. Only they could afford the major stars and coupled, eventually, with television saturation of the game, mass car ownership and good motorway links, it began to polarize support for the big clubs. Freedom of contract and the end of the outdated (in labour terms) retain-and-transfer system would also contribute to this development.

That, though, was still some way down the line. Meanwhile, down in the soccer backwater of rural Suffolk, Alf Ramsey, the former Tottenham full-back, was creating a tactical football revolution. Using a withdrawn 'winger' in Jimmy Leadbetter and two fine goalscorers in Ray Crawford and Ted Phillips, he took Ipswich Town from the Second Division to the League Championship. Four years later, Ramsey was weaving a similar tactical plan to take England to World Cup glory.

Everton, Liverpool (the first of Bill Shankly's major successes) and Manchester United all took the title in the early 1960s, and before the decade was out the Championship had gone back to Anfield and then Old Trafford. After Manchester United won it in 1967 they went on to become the first English club to win the European Cup on a night of high emotion at Wembley.

The first of Busby's successful teams had included several players who were on the books when war broke out — men like Johnny Morris, Stan Pearson, Charlie Mitten, Jack Rowley, Allenby Chilton and Johnny Carey. Now the post-Munich team paraded the skills of Munich survivor Bobby Charlton together with the ultimately wayward genius of George Best and the fiery Denis Law.

Then it was Manchester City's turn for League glory under Joe Mercer and Malcolm Allison, with United finishing runners-up to make it Manchester's season, before Don Revie carried on his Leeds United miracle. Revie had taken a club wallowing in Divison Two and eventually turned it into Championship-winning material, the first success coming in 1968-9. Leeds United, born out of the disgraced Leeds City, who were kicked out of the League in 1919 for, the cynics may say, being found out when they paid illegal bonuses, were a club who had acheived very little up to then.

Revie changed all that and his side, led by another fiery Scot in Billy Bremner, could practically be pencilled-in every week during that first Championship success as Gary Sprake, Paul Reaney, Terry Cooper, Billy Bremner, Jack Charlton, Norman Hunter, Peter Lorimer, Paul Madeley, Johnny Giles, Eddie Gray, Mick Jones and Mike O'Grady held sway.

After Everton, with their magnificent midfield of Colin Harvey, Howard Kendall and Alan Ball, had another brief taste of success, Arsenal, under manager Bertie Mee, did the double in 1970-71. Many people outside Highbury said they were 'boring' — just as many people outside Elland Road had labelled Leeds 'unscrupulous' — but the feat had been achieved and new Arsenal heroes like Charlie George, John Radford, George Graham, Peter Storey, Ray Kennedy and Frank McLintock were the darlings of Highbury.

Brian Clough took Derby to their first title in 1971-2 — they were to win it again in 1974-5 under former Tottenham star, Dave Mackay — but now the Football League was entering the age of Liverpool. Since 1975-6, Liverpool have won the Football League Championship on no less than ten occasions. Occasionally there have been interlopers — Aston Villa, Nottingham Forest, Everton and Arsenal, who won the title in 1988-9 and lifted it again in 1990-91 — but Liverpool have been the most remarkably consistent club in the history of the competition. Successive managers — Bob Paisley, Joe Fagan and Kenny Dalglish — have inherited Bill Shankly's legacy and built upon it.

In 1975-6, Paisley steered Liverpool to the League Championship and the UEFA Cup, first won three years earlier. The title was retained the following year and if Liverpool's away form concerned their supporters, their results at the citadel which Anfield had become more than allayed any fears. It has been a familar story ever since — Liverpool were Champions in 1978-9, 1979-80, 1981-2, 1982-3, 1983-4, 1985-6, 1987-8 and 1989-90.

During that time there have been many Anfield heroes: Keegan, Toshack, Heighway, Callaghan, Hughes, Thompson, Clemence, Neal, Jones, Dalglish, Souness, Smith, the Kennedys, McDermott,

Hansen, Johnson, Johnston, Case, Fairclough, Grobbelaar, Lee, Whelan, Lawrenson, Rush, Nicol, Molby, Barnes, Beardsley, Aldridge, McMahon, Gillespie, Houghton. One could go on and on, for there have been so very many headline-making names to come out of Anfield

And all this, of course, has been achieved by the tremendous consistency of the Liverpool approach, the famous 'boot-room' brigade who have plotted the Reds' seemingly inexorable march over these past two decades.

Indeed, it is now hard to imagine a time when Liverpool were not dominating English football, although the 1991-2 season saw the Reds suffer injury and uncharacteristically fall away in the First Division.

It may be, of course, that they will recover to dominate it for years to come. It may be that Arsenal will emerge as the dominant force once more.

But already, new challengers in the shape of Leeds United, who lifted the Football League Championship in 1991-2 under Howard Wilkinson, have appeared to confirm that there is still a chance for a team from outside the ring of Merseyside and London clubs, who have, by and large, made the Football League title their preserve for so many years now.

It may be, of course, that the FA's new 'Super League' will render such speculation superfluous. Perhaps the fairy-story rise of clubs like Oxford United and Wimbledon, both of whom made it from the Southern League to the First Division in truly testing times, will never be repeated.

The effects of the advent of the Premier League have not been so far-reaching as was first thought. The existing Second Division clubs and the players' union, the Professional Footballers' Association, have seen to that.

Far from being a small élite group, the Premier League will not look much different from the old First Division after all. The Football League has proved too lusty a centenarian to be casually swept aside.

Indeed, the story of the Football League is a remarkable one and a tale that even that great 19th-century visionary, William McGregor, could hardly have foreseen. Would McGregor approve of the Premier League? Perhaps he would, for he was ever the visionary. After all, was not the original Football League of 1888 just that — a premier competition for the best in the land?

Edgar Chadwick was one of the great names in football in the 1890s. Born in Blackburn, he had one season with Blackburn Rovers before joining Everton for the inaugural Football League season. He won seven England caps at inside-forward and Championship medals with Everton and Southern League Southampton, whom he joined in 1900 after one season with Burnley.

Gavin Crawford was one of Woolwich Arsenal's first professional footballers and their skipper for several years. He had already made around 100 senior appearances when the Gunners entered the Football League in 1893. Crawford, a wing-half, later played for Millwall and QPR and was Charlton Athletic's groundsman.

Football League Records Season 1898-99

Top scorers: Div 1, S.Bloomer (Derby County) 23 goals; Div 2, W.Abbott (Small Heath) 33 goals.
From this season automatic two-up/two-down system of promotion/relegation came into operation. Barnsley, Glossop North End, New Brighton Tower and Burslem Port Vale elected to the League.

Wing-half Herrod Ruddlesdin was ever-present when Sheffield Wednesday won the Second Division in 1899-1900. He later won three England caps and two League Championship medals but died in March 1910, when he was only 33.

Football League Records Season 1900-01

Top scorers: Div 1, S.Bloomer (Derby County) 23 goals; Div 2, A.Swann (Barnsley) 18 goals
Blackpool and Stockport County were elected in place of Loughborough Town and Luton Town

'Sandy' Turnbull, one of six Manchester City players banned by the FA in 1906 over illegal payments, was Manchester United's leading scorer when they won their first League Championship in 1907-08.

Football League Records Season 1908-09

Top scorers: Div 1, B.Freeman (Everton) 38 goals; Div 2, A.Bentley (Derby County) 24 goals
Stoke resigned and Lincoln City failed to gain re-election. Bradford and Tottenham Hotspur were elected in their place.

*Port Vale replaced Leeds City

West Brom's Fred Morris scored a record 37 goals when the Throstles won the League Championship in 1919-20. That form earned him two England caps.

Football League Records

Top scorers: Div 1, J.Smith (Bolton Wanderers) 38 goals; Div 2, S.Puddefoot (West Ham United) 29 goals; Div 3, J.Connor (Crystal Palace), E.Simms (Luton Town), G.Whitworth (Northampton Town) 28 goals

Lincoln City failed to gain re-election. Cardiff City and Leeds United were elected to Division Two. Grimsby Town together with the clubs from Division One of the Southern League formed the new Division Three.

Tommy Browell joined Manchester City from Everton for £1,780 and scored 31 goals as City finished First Division runners-up in 1920-21.

Football League Records

Top scorers: Div 1, E.Harper (Blackburn Rovers) 43 goals; Div 2, J.Trotter (Sheffield Wednesday) 37 goals; Div 3(N), J.Cookson (Chesterfield) 44 goals; Div 3(S), J.Cock (Plymouth Argyle) 32 goals. Rotherham County became Rotherham United; Stoke became Stoke City.

When Huddersfield Town won their third successive League Championship in 1925-6, centre-half Tommy Wilson played in all but one game.

Grimsby Town's Jimmy Carmichael was a prolific scorer but perhaps his most spectacular effort was the one he netted against New Brighton in May 1926 to give the Mariners the Third Division North title.

Football League Records

Top scorers: Div 1, W.Dean (Everton) 60 goals; Div 2, J.Cookson (West Bromwich Albion) 38 goals; Div 3(N), J.Smith (Stockport County) 38 goals; Div 3(S), D.Morris (Swindon Town) 38 goals.
Aberdare Athletic failed to gain re-election, Torquay United were elected in their place. Walsall transferred to Division Three South.

Dixie Dean, whose record 60 goals for Everton as they lifted the title will surely never be beaten. Dean scored a hat-trick in the last match, against Arsenal, to clinch the record.

Football League Records

Top scorers: Div 1, J.Bowers (Derby County) 34 goals; Div 2, E.Glover (Grimsby Town) 42 goals; Div 3(N), A.Lythgoe (Stockport County) 46 goals; Div 3(S), A.Dawes (Northampton Town & Crystal Palace) 27 goals.

The legendary Alex James, who in eight seasons at Highbury helped steer Arsenal to four League titles and two FA Cup triumphs.

Grimsby Town's Pat Glover, whose 42 goals in 1933-4 saw the Mariners into Division One. It is still a club record.

Football League Records

Top scorers: Div 1, F.Steel (Stoke City) 33 goals; Div 2, J.Bowers (Leicester City) 33 goals; Div 3(N), E.Harston (Mansfield Town) 55 goals; Div 3(S), J.Payne (Luton Town) 55 goals.
Walsall transferred to Division Three South.

Irish international Peter Doherty, who netted 30 goals when Manchester City won the League Championship. Astonishingly, City were relegated 12 months later.

In late September 1939, the authorities allowed football to restart with friendly games and a crowd limit of 8,000. Above: Arsenal's Reg Cumner crosses the ball against Brentford at Griffin Park. Brentford won 3-0.

Oldham Athletic full-back Tom Shipman punches the ball away at Old Trafford but Manchester United wing-half Bill McKay scored from the spot to help United to a 3-1 win.

Bristol City goalkeeper Watts punches clear during his side's 10-3 defeat at Plymouth on 3 February 1940. Regional football was now allowed but only 846 people turned up to see this South-West Division game. Indeed, it was the only match played in snowbound Britain that day.

Vic Woodley collects a high ball during Chelsea's 3-2 win at Aldershot. Sam Weaver looks on.

Top scorers: Div 1, D.Davis (Sunderland) 25 goals; Div 2, T.Briggs (Grimsby Town) 35 goals; Div 3(N), R.Phillips (Crewe Alexandra), P.Doherty (Doncaster Rovers) 26 goals; Div 3(S), T.Lawton (Notts County) 31 goals.

Peter Harris, Portsmouth's flying outside-right. Along with Jimmy Dickinson he was picked for England's summer tour. Alas, injury ruled him out, but he helped Pompey to another title.

Tottenham's Les Medley, the winger who was top scorer when the 'push and run' team lifted the Second Division title in 1949-50.

Football League Records

Top scorers: Div 1, G.Robledo (Newcastle United) 33 goals; Div 2, D.Dooley (Sheffield Wednesday) 46 goals; Div 3(N), A.Graver (Lincoln City) 36 goals; Div 3(S), R.Blackman (Reading) 39 goals.
New Brighton failed to gain re-election, Workington elected in their place. Shrewsbury Town transferred to Division Three South.

When Manchester United won the title in 1951-2, Jack Rowley's 30 goals included hat-tricks in the first two games and stood as a club record until beaten by Dennis Viollet eight years later.

Football League Records

Top scorers: Div 1, J.Charles (Leeds United) 38 goals; Div 2, A.Rowley (Leicester City) 44 goals; Div 3(N), R.Straw (Derby County) 37 goals; Div 3(S), E.Phillips (Ipswich Town) 42 goals.

Elegant England left-back Roger Byrne skippered Manchester United to a second successive Championship. He, too, was a Munich victim.

Football League Records

Top scorers: Div 1, J.Greaves (Tottenham Hotspur) 35 goals; Div 2, R.Saunders (Portsmouth) 33 goals; Div 3, A.Biggs (Bristol Rovers) 30 goals; Div 4, H.McIlmoyle (Carlisle United) 39 goals.

Scottish international forward Ian St John scored 21 goals when Liverpool won the League Championship in 1963-4. The following year his glorious headed goal won the FA Cup for the Merseysiders.

Bobby Collins, the great Scottish midfield general on whose talent Don Revie launched his great sides. Collins missed only one game as Leeds were promoted from Division Two in 1963-4.

Football League Records

Top scorers: Div 1, A.McEvoy (Blackburn Rovers), J.Greaves (Tottenham Hotspur) 29 goals; Div 2, G.O'Brien (Southampton) 34 goals; Div 3, K.Wagstaff (Mansfield Town & Hull City) 34 goals; Div 4, A.Jeffrey (Doncaster Rovers) 36 goals.

George Best, the wayward genius whose skills lit up Manchester United's title-winning season of 1964-5.

Midfielder Dave Hilley was outstanding in Newcastle's promotion season. Hugely creative, he also scored 12 goals as the Magpies topped Division Two.

Football League Records

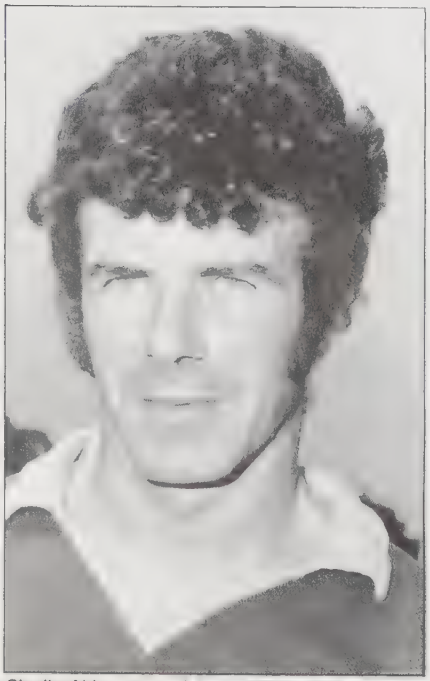
Top scorers: Div 1, F.Lee (Manchester City) 33 goals; Div 2, R.Latchford (Birmingham City) 23 goals; Div 3, E.MacDougall (AFC Bournemouth) 35 goals; Div 4, P.Price (Peterborough United) 28 goals. Bournemouth & Boscombe Athletic became AFC Bournemouth.

Derby County skipper Roy McFarland missed only four games as the Rams won the League Championship for the first time in their history.



Charlie Aitken, one of Aston Villa's all-time greats. Altogether he made 656 full League and Cup appearances for them and was a great inspiration when they returned from the Third Division in 1971-2.

Football League Records

Top scorers: Div 1, G.Lineker (Everton) 30 goals; Div 2, K.Drinkell (Norwich City) 22 goals; Div 3, T.Senior (Reading) 27 goals; Div 4, S.Taylor (Rochdale), R.Cadette (Southend United) 25 goals.

South African-born Craig Johnston, signed from Australian soccer, was an individualist whose style was harnessed to the Reds' team by manager Kenny Dalglish.

Goalkeeper Chris Woods was ever-present when Norwich City won the Second Division in 1985-6. He later signed for Glasgow Rangers and became regarded as England's number-one after the retirement of Peter Shilton.
